Former Calloway Man, Three Others Killed In Accident

Seen & Heard Around MURRAY

George Overby sent us the following. It appeared in the Kentucky State Bar Journal, January issue. It is a little long, but it makes a point not made before. Good reading for young fellows who maybe do not realize the full implication of what they are doing "for a lark."

"Paroles Are Painful"

(Editors Note: The following article was written by an Iowa attorney who adapted the message from remarks made by a district court judge while sentencing two high school boys. The youngsters had thoughtlessly made a practice of "borrowing" automobiles for joy riding.)

"You come from good homes, both of you."

"E. I have known your father for many years and I have for him as much respect as for any man I know. I do not know what attitude he has taken about this at home, but since your arrest he has gone about his work with his face as full of sorrow as if there had been a death in the family. You retain his love, but you will never again have his full respect and confidence. There will never be a time when you are away from home when he will not have a feeling of fear and wonder about what you are doing."

"H. Mr. E. tells me that your family is as good as E. You may be sure that the things I say apply equally to you."

"Now you have been convicted of a felony. A felony is a crime for which you might be sent to the penitentiary. In this case I do not have to send you to the penitentiary. The law gives me a choice of sending you to the county jail for six months at hard labor, or fine you $300."

"Because you are only 16, I can send you to Eldora instead of to Anamosa."

"Because you have had no previous conviction and because you are not infected with venereal disease, I am permitted to give you a parole. The law does not allow parole for persons infected with venereal disease nor for other offenses other than the first. Never again will any court have the right to parole you."

"But if you never see the inside of a penitentiary or the jail you will not have escaped from the penalties of your crime."

"You stand convicted of a felony. The record of your conviction will be here as long as the courthouse stands. No amount of good conduct in the future can ever erase it. Next year, or ten years from now, or when you are old men, if you are ever called to the witness stand, excluding Alaska and Hawaii, was 16 below at Houlton, Maine. The high Monday was 61 at Fort Myers, Fla.

Weather Report

Western Kentucky — Considerable cloudiness today through Wednesday. Continued seasonal temperatures with occasional periods of drizzle mostly at night and early morning. High today mid 40s. Low tonight mid 30s.

Kentucky Lake: 7 a.m. 36, down 0.1; below dam 30.3. Six gates open. Barkley Dam headwater 331.6, down 0.2; tailwater 313, down 1.8. Sunrise 7:07; sunset 4:44. Moon rises 8:56 p.m.

HI-LO — The lowest temperature reported to the U.S. Weather Bureau this morning, excluding Alaska and Hawaii, was 16 below at Houlton, Maine. The high Monday was 61 at Fort Myers, Fla.

Pestus Jack Enoch, 54 of Memphis, Tennessee, a former Calloway Countyman, was killed in an automobile accident on Sunday at 4:00 p.m. when his vacation bound car collided head-on with a truck in southeast Arizona.

Killed also were his wife and daughter and a nephew. All were former Henry County residents.

The dead: —Oscar L. Nored, 36, of Paris Route 4, an employee of the city street department.

—Pestus Jack Enoch, 54, of Memphis, driver of the car and Nored's uncle.

—Mrs. Louise Seymour Enoch, 56, Enoch's wife and Patty Ruth Enoch, 17 their daughter.

The bodies were taken to West-lawn Chapel in Wilcox, Ariz., about two miles east of the crash scene. A coroner's inquest was to be held at 10 a.m. Monday and the bodies are expected to arrive at Ridge-way Morticians in Paris Wednesday morning.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete. Services are expected to be held Thursday.

The Enochs, former Henry County Tennessee residents, had lived in Memphis about 16 years. The four left Memphis shortly after midnight Friday for Anaheim, Calif., where they had planned to spend the holidays with the Enoch's daughters, Mrs. Robert Chance and Mrs. Charles Jones.

Arizona state police said the accident occurred on state highway 86. They said Enoch, who was driving the car, apparently fell asleep at the wheel. They said the car veered across the center line into the path of tractor-trailer truck driven by Nelson Millard Albin, 44, of Hamilton, Tenn.

Albin and his passenger, Donald Lee Jones, 30, also of Hamilton, were taken to Wilcox Hospital for treatment of injuries. They were reported in serious condition.

Enoch was born Sept. 11, 1908, in Henry County and had lived most of his life in Paris. He was the son of Leland Nored and Mrs. Robbie Enoch Perry of Paris. Billy D. Perry of Paris is a half-brother. He had served two years in the Army. Enoch was born Aug. 9, 1910, in Calloway County, Ky. the son of the late William Franklin and Vir-die Orr Enoch. He was a civilian employee of the Naval Air Station at Millington, working as a pipe-fitter. Survivors include a sister, Mrs. Robbie Perry of Paris and a brother, Ollie Enoch of Memphis.

Mrs. Enoch was born in Henry County, October 18, 1914, the daughter of the late William Fernald and Ella Underwood Seymour. Her survivors include six sisters, Miss Ruby Seymour, Mrs. Sara E. Whitehead and Mrs. Clara Oliver of Paris, Mrs. Mildred Thompson of Buchanan, Mrs. Audrey King of Rutherford, Tenn., and Mrs. Irene West of Paducah, Ky., and three brothers, Otis Seymour of Paris, John Henry Seymour of Columbia, Ga., and Doris Seymour of Hallett, Mich.

Patty Ruth Enoch was born June 4, 1947, in Henry County. She was a senior at Treadwell High School in Memphis.

The Enochs were members of National Baptist Church in Memphis and lived at 3545 Kallagher. Their survivors include the two daughters in Anaheim, Mrs. Virginia Nell Chance and Mrs. Shirley Ann James, a son, James Edward Enoch of Columbus, Miss., and five grandchildren.

Whole Towns Are Evacuated As Great Floods Hit Pacific

By United Press International

Drenching rains and gales caused the worst floods in years along the Pacific Coast today. Entire towns were evacuated as houses were swept away by the raging waters.

Residents of California's Del Norte County said the deluge was worse than the disastrous floods of 1955. Hundreds of families were evacuated from the area. One town was under five feet of water. Flood waters chewed supporting earth from the roots of the canyon's famed redwood trees and many of the giants were likely to topple.

Gales whipped the Columbia River into waves which pounded Astoria, Ore., washing out two 50-foot sections of railroad tracks, collapsing two docks, sinking one barge and capsizing another.

Logs floated over a main highway near Coos Bay, Ore. The waters ruined homes and closed numerous roads.

The storm was blamed for at least two deaths in Oregon, as winter's first full day vented a fury of rain and winds mixed with heavy snow in central Washington and the Sierra, Cascade and Rocky mountains.

The rains roiled 50 mile-an-hour winds off the ocean into northern California and Oregon. Highways were cut off and homes flooded by runaway rivers.

The downpour spelled big trouble along the El River in Humboldt Bay. Upstream, more than 1,500 persons fled their homes in little valley towns nestled among the towering slopes of redwood forest and pastureland.

The towns of Myers Flat, Weott and Pepperwood were completely evacuated. The town of Phillips ville was isolated north and south by floodwaters. Humboldt County authorities worked through the night trying to get boats into the stricken area.

Rainfall in the county has averaged up to 5 inches since Sunday. Monday the county marked the ninth anniversary of the disastrous 1955 floods and the eighth anniversary of a multi-million dollar earthquake.

The Mad River in Humboldt County and the Smith River in Del Norte County were expected to flood by daybreak today.

Mudslides and high water cut off traffic in parts of the Sierras, shut down U.S. 101 near Garberville and close California 1 in two parts of Mendocino County. Red Cross emergency stations were opened to help flood victims.

Candlelight Service Planned For Thursday

A Candlelight Service will be held on Christmas Eve in First Christian Church, beginning at 7:30 p.m. The service is an encouragement to celebrate Christmas in a Christian manner, the pastor Rev. William Porter said.

Families are encouraged to come together, to enter the sanctuary quietly, to offer prayers of thanksgiving for blessings of this year, and to unite in a service of praise and adoration.

Music and readings appropriate to the season will be presented by the Chancel and Junior Chorus of the church, and William Porter, Minister. The choir will be under the direction of Leonard Whitmer and Mrs. William Porter.

The Candlelight Service will be concluded by everyone lighting a candle, and uniting in singing "Silent Night."

The service will begin at 7:30, and is open to the public.

Accident Is Reported In City Today

This morning at 7:20 a two car accident occurred at the intersection of South 8th and Poplar Streets, according to Sgt. Barney Weeks and Patrolman Bill McDougal of the Murray Police Department.

Police said Mrs. Jo Outland Roberts, driving a 1964 Ford, was going south on South 8th Street and pulled out in the path of the 1963 Valiant Station Wagon, being driven by Mrs. Wanda Duncan Jones west on Poplar Street. Police said Mrs. Roberts said she could not see the car coming down Poplar as her view was obstructed.

Monday at 2:20 p.m. two cars were involved in an accident at South 12th and Poplar Streets. Patrolmen Alvin Farris and Mossell Phillips of the Police Department said Doria Lee Higginbotham, driving a 1960 Rambler, was going north on South 12th Street and failed to stop in time for the four way stop at Poplar and hit the 1964 Chevrolet, being driven by Della Wolfe Duncan, who was turning left off of Poplar onto South 12th Street.

The policemen said Mrs. Higginbotham said it was Mrs. Duncan's time to go, but she failed to stop in time for the four way stop.

Chief of Police Burman Parker said one public drunk was arrested last night.

3 SHOPPING DAYS LEFT! HURRY!

400 FIREMEN BATTLE NEIMAN-MARCUS FIRE — Some 400 firemen using all available equipment battle a five-alarm fire at the world-famous Neiman-Marcus specialty store in Dallas, Tex. One of the owners estimated damage at between $5 million and $10 million. The blaze apparently was triggered by a series of explosions in the escalator system.

United Fund 25 Per Cent Short

Contributions to the Murray-Calloway County United Fund now total $17,632.20. This amount represents 75 per cent of the $23,500 goal, according to Fund Chairman Thomas B. Hogancamp.

"It is hoped by all the workers in this campaign that every person living in Calloway County and Murray will contribute his fair share. What a wonderful Christmas present this would be. Each of the 15 participating agencies performs a service to our community. Persons willing to give to the United Fund who have not contributed are urged to call the American Red Cross office. Their number 753-1421.

If everyone makes a "fair share" contribution it will be possible to assure that everyone who needs help, will receive help.

Homemaker Clubs Present Gifts To Western State

A. W. Simmons, Jr. president of the Murray-Calloway County Mental Health Association reported today a project which was completed by the County Homemakers Clubs.

The homemakers under the direction of Mrs. Barletta Wratner, collected over 200 gifts consisting of such items as toiletries, hobby supplies, and many other items. These gifts were delivered yesterday to Western State Hospital in Hopkinstown and will be distributed first to persons from Calloway County, and then to others in the hospital.

Mrs. Charlotte Blackwelder, Director of Volunteers for the hospital, said that many patients never received gifts or visits from their families and friends. She indicated that gifts at Christmas time would be of great benefit for the patients.

Many persons at the hospital would have had no Christmas, had it not been for the work of the Calloway Homemakers Clubs, Mrs. Simmons said.

"Only a visit to the hospital would allow a person to realize the full impact of this project," Simmons continued.

He congratulated the clubs for their work in this field.

Service Is Planned For Thursday Night

Thursday evening a Christmas Eve devotional service will be held in the College Presbyterian Church beginning at seven o'clock.

The pastor's theme will be "The First Christmas In Bethlehem." Dr. Frank Kodman of the College Psychology Department and a member of the church, will be soloist. Robin Hornsby will give a cornet solo.

The public is invited to the service.

Home Of Mrs. Henry Is Damaged By Fire

The home of Mrs. Emmett Henry on Murray Route Three was damaged by fire last Friday night about midnight.

Mrs. Henry said today that she awoke to find the house filled with smoke and called the Murray Fire Department who came and extinguished the flames which were around the flue of the house.

Active pallbearers will be Bennie Maddox, Blanche Ferguson, Roy Edmonds, Elmer Collins, Ernie Flood and Joe Pat Carraway.

Interment will be in the Murray Memorial Gardens with the arrangements by the J. H. Churchill Funeral Home where friends may call.

Funeral services will be held at the J. H. Churchill Funeral Home Thursday at one p.m. with Bro. Elvis Huffard and Bro. Jay Lockhart officiating.

Haunted By Leprosy, Young Mother Jumps From Bridge

By JOHN BARNETT

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A leprosy-haunted young housewife and mother gained strength today in a battle to survive a 230-foot plunge from the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge, a fall from a height on the bridge that no one else has ever survived.

Mrs. Isabelle Kainoa, 30, stopped her car on the bridge Monday morning, ran to the railing, leaped over the side, and fell to the storm-lashed waters of San Francisco Bay.

Six minutes later — thanks to her own instinct for survival and to an incredible combination of circumstances — she was pulled from the water by crewmen of a Coast Guard patrol boat.

She was taken to San Francisco General Hospital, where doctors said she had received a fracture of the pelvic bone, hip lacerations and possible internal injuries. She was described throughout the day Monday as critical, but by late Monday night she had improved to the point where doctors described her condition as "fair."

"It's a miracle that she survived," said Dr. Thomas E. Albers, administrator of the hospital.

Strong Swimmer

Mrs. Kainoa was saved partly because she was a strong and competent swimmer, a skill she developed during childhood days in Hawaii, and partly because she un-knowingly chose to leap at the one moment when rescue was near.

She has suffered since childhood from Hansen's disease, or leprosy. The disease was arrested before her marriage at the age of 16. Subsequently, she gave birth to three children.

Then, four years ago, her youngest child, John, was born, and the illness returned.

"My wife had what they call a reactivation of the disease," said her husband, Royal, 37. "She was receiving treatment as an out-patient — we weren't isolated, we would go around like other people — but she could not have intimate contact with very young children. She could not kiss our little boy — she had to meet him once a week in the park."

Signs Of Control

Recently, the disease appeared to be responding to treatment and showed signs of being brought under control once more.

But last week, Mrs. Kainoa told her husband she believed she was pregnant again.

"She thought the pregnancy would reactivate the leprosy," Kainoa said.

And so, while her husband slept Monday morning, after his nighttime work as a mechanic, Mrs. Kainoa left her home in Oakland and drove to the bridge.

Quotes From The News

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

JOHNSON CITY — John T. Connor, named to succeed Secretary of Commerce Luther Hodges, describing his "baptism of fire," at a budget-cutting session with President Johnson.

"It seemed to me it was a very favorable give and take. Of course in these sessions with the President, the cabinet members seem to do most of the giving and he does most of the taking."

PATERSON, N.J. — Father Cassian Kirk, one of a number of Roman Catholic priests held captive in a daring daylight $154,000 armored car robbery describing what it was like.

"A hand popped up and then this face. It was like coming out of the world of reality into a world of make-believe. I couldn't believe that the mask and the gun in my ribs were real... something like you'd see on television."

RIPLEY, Miss. — Joe Von Korff, 19, one of 25 Northern college students spending their Christmas holidays helping to rebuild a Negro church burned down at mass civil rights meeting last Oct. 31.

"We'll miss not being with our families, of course. But we felt this was something certainly worthwhile. Some of us were in Mississippi when the church burned. We thought it would be a good Christmas project to rebuild it."

WASHINGTON — California Congressman Bob Wilson announcing formation of a GOP "advisory committee" of all the party's big names, including Sen. Barry Goldwater and New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, to help raise money for the 1966 Congressional races.

"We realize that we have a big job to do, and we are going to roll up our sleeves, to work and win as unified party."

The Almanac

By United Press International

Today is Tuesday, Dec. 22, the 357th day of 1964 with time to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter.

The morning stars are Venus and Mars.

The evening stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1860, Post Edward Robinson was born.

In 1884, Captain Alfred Dreyfus — an officer of the French general staff — was found guilty of treason.

In 1941, a message from Wake Island said the American "stronghold in the Pacific had fallen to Japan."

In 1967, the Scottish freighter "Nerva" sank in the North Sea and 28 seamen went down with her.

A thought for the day — In the New Testament according to St. Matthew: "It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the Kingdom of God."

Business Highlights

By United Press International

NEW YORK: The Chilean government interest in Kennecott Copper Corporation's big subsidiary in that country and purchase a sizable but not majority stock participation in the properties of Anaconda, according to industry sources in Santiago.

Payment in both cases, it was said, would be mainly in the form of long-term bonds. Frank R. Miliken, president of Kennecott, would neither confirm nor deny the report. Anaconda President C. M. Brucknerhoff was not available for comment.

WASHINGTON: Housing starts in November dropped to the lowest level in nearly two years, worsening a downturn that has persisted for a year, figures of the Census Bureau showed. The November pace dipped 11 per cent below the October annual rate and was off 40 per cent from the November, 1963 rate. It estimated that starts for the full year will be off 2 per cent.

NEW YORK: An agreement to Prentice-Hall into Radio Corp. of America is nearing completion, the companies announced. The move could foreshadow a new educational media by merging conventional teaching methods to electronics. RCA Chairman David Sarnoff said the merger could "open to us major opportunities in all fields of educational endeavor."

NEW YORK: The rehabilitation of Wheeling Steel Corp. may take anywhere from four to seven years, according to Chairman Norton Simon. He said that resumption of control and profits dividend is unlikely for some years. Losses next year could run to "four, five, six or eight million dollars," Simon said.

THE LEDGER & TIMES — MURRAY, KENTUCKY

MURRAY STATE DOWNS MOREHEAD 89-82

Wins First Round Last Night In Star Studded Tournament

By BOB WESTON
United Press International
LOUISVILLE (UPI) — Without Murray's polished performance Monday night, the first round of the Ohio Valley Conference basketball tournament would have been a drab show.

However, the defending conference champions delighted the non-partisan fans at the Convention Center with their well-matched offense and their dogged defense as they polished off Morehead 89-82. The score was not indicative of Murray's clear superiority.

The victory propelled Murray into the semifinals tonight against Tennessee Tech, a 77-59 winner over East Tennessee Monday night. Arch rivals Eastern Kentucky and Western Kentucky will hook up in the other semifinal. Both advanced with ease Monday. Western toyed with Middle Tennessee 100-65 and Eastern used its height to great advantage in eliminating winless Austin Peay 100-81.

Showing nothing but contempt for Morehead's unimpressive record, Murray never let much doubt about which team would win. The result left the state without any undefeated college teams as Morehead, which had played all of its previous five games at home, was the only team left in that category before Monday night.

Senior John Nanciu and 6-foot junior Stew Johnson put Murray in early command. Nanciu repeatedly drove around his guard on slick one-on-one maneuvers to get in close for a basket. He wound up with 23 points, high for Murray.

The 6-foot-2 Nanciu pulled down 17 rebounds—an amazing total for a player his size. Johnson also grabbed 17 rebounds and showed a fine outside shooting touch for a player so tall, getting most of his 17 points from long range.

The aggressive Murray defense throttled Morehead scoring ace, Harold Sergeant, through most of the game and he was held to 16 points.

Only 6-foot-9 Henry Alkin was able to hit with any consistency over the zone defense, which Coach Cal Luther ordered midway through the first half. Alkin, a fine outside shooter, racked up 23 points before fading out with 8:07 left.

Western had the easiest route to the semifinals as Coach Johnny Oldham's made light work of Middle Tennessee. The Toppers made only 39 per cent of their shots, but they didn't have to be very sharp against the outclassed Raiders. Western led 60-32 at the half and soared into a 40-point lead at one point in the final half. Steve Cunningham, with 26 points, and C'm Haskins, with 19, vanned the Western onslaught.

Eastern got 17 points apiece from Eddie Bodkin and Bill Walton in disposing of Austin Peay. Big Bob Toian turned in the best rebounding performance of the tourney, sweeping 19 off the boards for Eastern.

Ron Hubson led Tennessee Tech with 14 points as Tech pulled away steadily from a narrow 31-29 half-time lead.

UCLA Uses Blitz To Form New Row Of Victories; Win Title

By JOE GERGEN
UPI Sports Writer

UCLA, whose 30-game winning streak was shattered on the very first day of the college basketball season, had a solid foundation for a new one with the help of a football weapon—the blitz.

Of course, the Bruins, defending national champions, don't call it a blitz. They use the more technical term of zone press. But their opponents aren't buying.

The UCLA win skin reached five Saturday night as the Bruins blitzed Boston College off its collective feet, 115-93, to capture the Milwaukee Classic title and serve notice that they fully intend to repeat their NCAA triumph of last season.

Currently ranked fifth among the nation's major colleges, UCLA trailed Bob Cousy's BC squad 42-41 late in the first half when the Bruins' leader, John Wooden, called for the blitz. And when the smoke had cleared only one minute and 25 seconds later, there were 18 more points on the scoreboard—all under the California school's column.

Kentucky Upset

Illinois, the team which shocked UCLA earlier this season, was full of surprises. The Illini had the temerity to whack ninth-ranked Kentucky in its own tournament—the Kentucky Invitational.

In whipping the Wildcats, 91-86, Illinois became the first Big Ten team ever to win the tournament, which the host team had won for three consecutive years.

Smooth center Skip Thoren scored 27 points and grabbed 22 rebounds and guard Tad Brody added 25 as the Illini ran their season record to 6-1.

Those experts who had conceded the Big Ten title to Michigan before the season began to appear a bit peaked. In addition to rambunctious Illinois, Minnesota and Indiana have displayed potent teams. While second-ranked Michigan was idle this weekend, undefeated Minnesota No. 4 rolled at Utah State, 88-69, as a 10-point capped in 33 points, and Western Indiana No. 10 pulverized Detroit, 108-89, with all five starters scoring in double figures.

The Missouri Valley Conference, where the competition is usually fierce, got off to an unusually placid start when co-favorites Wichita and St. Louis both scored league victories. The top-ranked shockers dumped Drake on the ice, 65-40, as Dave Stallworth scored 25 points, and the eighth-ranked Billikens toppled previously undefeated Bradley, 76-73.

Homesteaders Benefit

Although Kentucky was embarrassed in its own tournament, most schools benefited considerably from hometown action. The rude hosts included sixth-ranked Vanderbilt, Arizona State and Evansville, the nation's top small college outfit.

Christmastime Greetings

Out of the East the Wise Men came to seek and find a Holy Child. In the same spirit of reverence and wonder, joy and gratitude, mankind turns each year to the Christmas story, to seek and find new inspiration and guidance. Let us, this Christmastime, rededicate ourselves to the meaning and message of His birth, that we may achieve "Peace on Earth, Good Will to All Men."

Miss Patsy Fitts Entertains Friday With Special Party

Miss Patsy Fitts entertained a group of young ladies with a Christmas party on Friday, December 18, at her home on South Twelfth Street.

Patsy greeted each guest with a lovely Christmas message of red and green to carry out her Christmas motif. A number of games were played and gifts were given each winner.

Mrs. Fitts served refreshments and decorated Christmas cookies from a holiday covered table in the center of the round table was a lazy Susan filled with appetizers and dips.

Each of the fifteen guests brought a gift to be exchanged from the miniature tree which was planned especially for the festive occasion.

PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Wilson and family of Louisville will be the Christmas holiday guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Terry Lawrence, Benton Road.

Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Lilly and family of Louisville will be the Christmas holiday guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oswald Kummer of Franklin. Miss Trudy Lilly will return to Chattanooga, Tenn. with her uncle and aunt on Nov. 12. Mabe and family for the remainder of her Christmas vacation.

Miss Maria James of Owensboro returned by plane after being called to Murray for the funeral of her grandmother, Mrs. Clevie James, on Wednesday.

Miss Jeannetta Kay Farrell Becomes Bride Of Richard A. Baker In Church Ceremony

Mrs. Richard A. Baker

Miss Jeannetta Kay Farrell, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Farrell of 5325 Artway Street, North Charleston, S. C., formerly of Murray, and Richard A. Baker, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Cooper of 1501 Rock Street, North Charleston, S. C., were married November 26, in Sacred Heart Roman Catholic Church, Rev. William L. Newell officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore her sister's wedding gown of taffeta and rosepoint lace, featuring a bateau neckline trimmed with sequins and pearls. The bell skirt ended in a chapel train. Her ballerina-length veil of bridal illusion was held by a large duchesse rose. She carried a bouquet of feathered mums, carnations and roses on a white bubble.

Mrs. George Fye was her sister's maid of honor. She was attired in a floor length red velvet dress with red satin heels. Her headpiece was a red velvet bow with red illusion. She carried three long stem pink sweetheart roses.

Attendants were Mrs. Kenneth Farrell, a sister in law of the bride, and Miss Carol Buchanan, the bride's cousin. They wore floor length red velvet dresses with red satin heels and red velvet bows, carrying two long stem pink sweetheart roses.

Miss Sylvia Farrell was her sister's junior bridesmaid. She wore a red velvet floor length dress with red satin shoes. A red velvet bow was her headpiece and she carried two long stem pink sweetheart roses.

George Fye, brother in law of the bride, was best man. Ushers were Kenneth Farrell, a brother of the bride and Ronald Moxon.

Mrs. Farrell, the bride's mother, chose a dress of aqua blue lace over taffeta. Her hat was of aqua blue lace with beaded pearls and matching accessories. Her flowers were a shoulder corsage of pink rose buds.

The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Cooper, wore a two piece ice blue dress, with matching accessories. Her flowers were a shoulder corsage of white rose buds.

Reception

A reception was held following the wedding in the blessed Sacrament Church Hall.

The three tiered wedding cake, decorated in white with pink rose buds and topped with a miniature bride and groom, was served by Mrs. C. B. Buchanan, an aunt of the bride.

After the reception the couple left for a wedding trip to Florida.

For traveling the bride chose a olive green wool sheath dress with a green and brown plaid wool hip length cape. A matching green and brown plaid wool hat, with lizard green shoes and bag completed her ensemble.

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Farrell, of Nashville, Tenn., grandparents of the bride.

The bride attended Murray High School in 1959. The groom attended school in Massachusetts. He is now employed by Lockheed Georgia Air Craft Company.

Lassiter Home Is Scene Of Cole's Camp Ground Meet

The Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Cole's Camp Ground Methodist Church met Wednesday, December 16, at six-thirty o'clock in the evening at the home of Mrs. Charlie Lassiter and Mrs. J. L. Lassiter.

A very interesting Christmas program was presented by Mrs. Ned Coleman and Mrs. Max Lovett. Sunshine friends were revealed for the old year and names were drawn for the new year.

Before the program a very delicious potluck supper was enjoyed by the group.

Members present were Mesdames Trella McCusick, Ollie Hale, Fred Lovett, Bill Williams, Damon Lovett, Ned Coleman, Boyce Norman, Max Lovett, Marvin Scott, Billy Joe Hale, Homer Fred Whithier, Morris Crouse, Raymond Wraether, Lee Reeves, J. L. Lassiter, Larry Breed, and Charlie Lassiter. Visitors were Rev. Larry Breedlove and Miss Kathy Black.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Wednesday, December 23

The Christmas dance for the teen-agers, grades 10 to 12 and college, will be held at the Calloway County Country Club from 7:30 to 11:30 p.m. Each member may invite one non-member guest.

Dear Abby . . .

Look Elsewhere!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Do you think a mother should have any say about how her 16-year-old son wears his hair?

HIS MOTHER: It seems, are constantly criticizing their teen-aged sons about something. They would be wise to save their prodding for more important things, such as integrity, cleanliness and insisting that their sons give their best efforts to their studies. When a boy expresses his rebellion in an off-beat and perhaps freakish hair style, if his hair is clean, skip it, Mother.

DEAR ABBY: Everyone I ask tells me something different and by now I am dizzy. Maybe you or one of your readers can help me decide. Should we sell our house? We've lived here 26 years and my husband and I are all alone now, having just married off our youngest daughter. My husband says we should keep the house so that when the children come to visit us for them. He says that after living in a 14-room house we will never be happy in an apartment. I say if the children want to visit us, we can rent them an apartment in the same building or somewhere near us. The steps in this house are too much for me, we don't need a yard any more and it's hard to keep up. A big house is a lot of work to keep clean. It's expensive and, besides, now that the children are gone, it's lonesome. Any ideas? NOT GETTING ANY YOUNGER: (And who left?) This is one decision you and your husband must make for yourselves. I say, do whatever is easier for YOU.

DEAR ABBY: After 22 years of marriage my husband has left me. I have consulted marriage counselors, ministers, friends and relatives. In short, I've tried everything, but he still refuses to come home. He simply said he had been "thinking about it" for a long time, and he packed and left. As far as I know, he hasn't started any legal proceedings. I will not start them, and I told him that if he did, I would fight him. People refer to our "separation." Technically we are not "separated." We are still legally married, only he left me. Why do respectable people invite HIM over for dinner and entertain him for bridge week-ends, camping trips and parties? Everyone knows we are still married, yet they treat him as though he were a gay bachelor. Are they not condoning his actions by inviting him? My lawyer told me as long as he pays the bills there is nothing I can do but wait. Is this fair? What do you suggest?

ALONE: There is rarely "fairness" in the personal tragedy of divorce. Listen to your lawyer, and find out what is best for you.

DEAR ABBY: I think the woman who signed herself "CONFUSED" has my ex-husband. There can't be TWO men in the world like that. Tell her that she isn't NUMBER THREE, she is NUMBER FIVE. When I married him I thought I was NUMBER TWO, but I was NUMBER FOUR. (I just got rid of him last summer, so I doubt if he could have married anyone in between.) Also, tell her they should stay out of Georgia, West Virginia, and North Carolina, as he is wanted for felonies there.

NUMBER FOUR: Troubled? Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How To Have A Lovely Wedding," send 50 cents to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif.

Ancient Day Observed On Next Monday

By LOUIS CASSELS
One of the church's ancient calen-endar of feast days, next Monday
Dec. 21 is dedicated to the patron saint of skeptics.

The New Testament calls him
Thomas Didymus, but he is better known to history as "Doubting Thomas."
The first three gospels tell us nothing about him, except to list his name among the 12 disciples who accompanied Jesus through His ministry.
But the fourth gospel records three incidents in which Thomas was a central figure. These brief anecdotes give us a surprisingly clear picture of his character. It is the picture of a man who was by nature a pessimist, and who found it hard to believe good news. He was a brave and loyal disciple.

But he was stubbornly honest and would never pretend to believe or understand when he was really ripped by doubt or confusion.
Lazarus Was Dying
Once, Jesus and His disciples crossed the Jordan River into Galilee to escape from a hostile mob which had threatened to stone them in Jerusalem. No sooner had they reached safety than word came that Jesus' friend Lazarus was dying. Jesus told the disciples He had to go back to Jerusalem to be with Lazarus. The disciples tried to talk Him out of the dangerous trip. When it was clear He was determined to go, Thomas turned to his fellow disciples and said:

"Let us also go, that we may die with Him."
Pessimist that he was, Thomas was sure that the trip would be disastrous. But if Jesus was going, he would go too.
We next hear from Thomas on the night of the Last Supper. Jesus was trying to prepare His disciples for the snack of seeing Him arrested and crucified. "Let not your hearts be troubled," He told them.
"I go to prepare a place for you... and you know the way where I am going."

The other disciples listened in silence, and perhaps some of them nodded, as if they understood. But not the tactless, ever-truthful Thomas.

Didn't Know Way

"Lord, we do not know where thou art going," he interrupted.
"So how can we know the way?"
It was the question of a literalminded man who has to have it all spelled out for him. And it evoked a reply that has come ringing down the centuries:
"I am the way, the truth and the life... if you knew Me, you would know the Father also. From now on you do know Him. You have seen Him."
It was the most forthright language Jesus had ever used to tell His disciples who He was. And it was elicited by Thomas' refusal to pretend that he understood more subtle clues which had in fact gone right over his head.
The episode which gave Thomas his nickname occurred, after the Resurrection. Thomas had not been present when the risen Christ made His first appearances. Although the other disciples had told him the good news, Thomas flatly refused to believe it until he saw Jesus with his own eyes.

Appeared To Thomas

A week later, Jesus did appear to Thomas. He insisted that the skeptical disciple examine his wounds, and satisfy himself by touch as well as sight that He was indeed a living person and not an hallucination.

Thomas' response was to fall on his knees and say, "my Lord and my God."

Jesus rebuked him gently. "because you have seen me you have found faith," he said. "Blessed are those who have not seen and yet believe." The Bible doesn't say what happened to Thomas after that. An ancient tradition holds that he carried the gospel to India, and died a martyr's death there.
Scholars can find no evidence to prove or disprove this story. But it sounds like the sort of thing that Thomas might do.

SEEN AND HEARD....

cord of these proceedings will be brought up from the vaults and read to the jury.

"And the question will be asked for the purpose of casting doubt on your testimony. Convicted felons are not believed as readily as other persons.

"It may be that some day you will have a chance to get in one of the expanding countries of South America, and you will apply for a passport. You will not get it. Canada might allow you to come in for a two-week fishing trip, but you will not be allowed to stay. No country will allow you to become a resident. Your world is, oh, so much smaller than it was.

"Some day you may seek a position in the civil service of your state or of your nation. On the application blank you will find this question: 'Have you ever been convicted of a felony?' Your truthful answer will bar you from examination; an untruthful answer will be detected because appointments are made only after investigation. The record is here to be found by anyone interested.

"Some day you may want to take a position of trust, where a surety bond is required. On the application for the bond will appear this question: 'Have you ever been convicted of a felony?'

"And while you are going from one bonding company to another trying to find one willing to take a chance on you, the position will be filled by some applicant who has not been convicted of felony.

"In a few years you will be 21 and others your age will have the right to vote, but you will not. Your father may be a candidate for public office, but you will not be allowed to vote for him. The members of your political party will not be interested in you, because you will have no vote to give.

"You will be a citizen of your state and of your country, but you will have no voice in public affairs.

"It may be that some day the governor will pardon you and restore your rights, but it is going to be humiliating to ask him. He'll want to know your whole record. It is a bad one.

"Your country is calling men to the colors. Its need is such that men are being drafted. But the Army will never accept you, nor will the Navy. Military men are proud of the service; they will not permit it to be debased by the enlistment of convicted felons. You may serve your country in a labor battalion perhaps, but never behind the guns. Yours may be the drudgery of war, but never the honor that comes to a soldier.

"I am granting you a parole. A parole is in no sense a pardon. You will report to the men who have accepted your parole as often as they may ask. Your convenience is not a matter of importance. You will answer fully and truthfully any question they may ask. Should they suggest that you refrain from going to certain places or with certain company, you will follow their suggestions without question and without grumbling.

"You will also obey your parents. If your parents send you to bed at 9 o'clock you will go without complaint. You will perform such tasks as are assigned to you. Your parole is a fragile thing. Should the slightest complaint of your conduct reach this court, your parole will be revoked immediately and you will begin serving your sentence. You will not be brought back here for questioning or explanation. You will be picked up and taken to prison without notice to you and without delay."

CHAPTER 14
"JOEL Oatman has it for you, Phil," Eileen Magruder told Phil Chance. "My father says Oatman's mad enough to kill you, the way you talked to him in his saloon. And another one is Dwight Violet. He's been drinking and bragging about how he's going to tear you in two next time he sees you."
"Nice, friendly country," Phil said drily. "True southwestern hospitality."
"Please don't joke about it, Phil. I wish you'd be careful—I almost wish you hadn't taken this job."
"Now you're beginning to sound like somebody else," he said, thinking of Lena Murdoch. But he was touched by Eileen's concern, and tried to let her know he appreciated it by leaning his horse close to hers and leaning out, taking her hand in his and gently kissing her lips.
She surprised him then; she lifted both hands and grasped his shoulders, and held his head, forcing her lips hard against his. He heard the quickening of her breathing, felt the tightness of her grip. When she drew back, she said huskily "There. Do you still think I'm a child, Phil?"
His eyes narrowed. "I never said you were," he murmured.
"You never treated me like a woman before."
"Then I've paid for my mistake by what I missed," he said.
She smiled. "I like the look that comes on your face when you're surprised." She tossed her head coquettishly and reined her horse around. "I've changed my mind," she said. "Do you mind if I ride back with you?"
"Proud to have you," he said. Side by side, they lifted their horses to a canter. Eileen said, "See that mesquite on top of the slope? I'll race you for it."
"All right."
"Go!" she cried; and, laughing gaily, she spurred her horse forward, startling him. Chance grinned, giggled the dun and leaned forward in the saddle. The wind whipped his face, hot and dry against the dust caked on his flesh; he liked the feel of pounding limbs beneath him, the solid clatter of hoofbeats, the smooth rush of the dun; he gained swiftly on the girl, overtook her halfway the finish and reached the mesquite thirty yards ahead of her. The girl pulled up laughing. "That's a good horse you picked."
"He'll do." The smell of dust was in his nostrils; the hot sun slapped his shoulders. Abruptly,

Auto Replacement Parts Business Is Headed For An All Time Record This Year, $9 Billion

Take 82,000,000 autos, trucks and buses. Add more than 799 billion miles of travel, more than half of it in rush-hour city driving. Consider that the passenger cars average six years of age, that the trucks and buses are an average of almost eight years old, and that all of them are subject to the aches and pains of advancing age.

Throw these facts and figures into a computer — along with a dozen other factors — and you come up with a whopping retail estimate of $9 billion that American motorists will spend this year simply to replace worn parts and keep their vehicles fit.

Rushing jubilantly to meet this burgeoning demand is a group of manufacturers whose watchful eyes have seen it coming far, far down the road. When the Detroit auto makers cheered the booming new-car sales years of the Fifties and early Sixties, this group cheered too — for a different reason. As each new car rolled by, these aftermarket men saw future dollars in replacement parts.

Despite the fact that these manufacturers will sell almost $9 billion worth of goods this year (at wholesale cost), their diverse and scattered industry has been something of a phantom, overshadowed largely by the glamour of Detroit. And yet when the time comes for a carburetor or clutch to be replaced, the chances are seven out of ten that an independent parts maker will supply it, rather than the auto company that made the car.

These lean, aggressive independents have gained 70 per cent of the market by distributing their replacement parts through every conceivable channel — the nation's 200,000 gasoline service stations and 104,000 independent repair garages via 17,000 wholesalers, and direct through a zebra of mail order, chain and department store outlets. Even the franchised car dealers themselves admit that they regularly sell independent parts brands that are identical to their factory brands.

A Case In Point

An illustration of the way that the independents have grown is Chicago-based Maremont Corporation, a former blacksmith shop that today has emerged as the maker of more replacement parts than any other aftermarket firm in the world.

Growing fast during the Fifties on the soaring demand for mufflers, brakes and clutches, Maremont expanded to become a supplier of more than 8,000 part designations covering car models and years dating back to 1928 with most of the frequently-replaced items of a vehicle. These include starters, generators, fuel pumps, carburetors, armatures, water pumps, alternators, power brake units, solenoids, shock absorbers, voltage regulators and other major functional parts.

All of these parts lines have been combined into a Maremont family of products, backed by a "new car" type two year 24,000 mile warranty and nationally advertised. Their sales account for much of Maremont's present $120 million annual volume.

Firms Must Be Flexible To Survive
Of course, the business of reproducing an original product and waiting until the replacement calls for it is not without a carload of headaches. To survive as an independent aftermarket producer takes an unusual amount of agility. The reason is obvious: parts on today's Detroit cars may not be required tomorrow, due to swift design changes.

For example, in the early auto days, Maremont specialized in replacement leaf springs. But when the 1930's brought in coil springs, the company was forced to search for other product lines. It was just a matter of time before the leaf spring market would diminish to zero. By the time that this zero hour came — in the early Fifties — Maremont had long since pursued a vigorous entry into the replacement muffler business and become one of the country's three largest markets.

Then, while the muffler market boomed in the Fifties, Maremont and others saw that it was too good to last. Long life materials and other improvements they themselves were making on exhaust systems would eventually cut muffler mortality rates and, hence, their replacement demand.

Seeking products that could take up the future slack and also expand its salesmen's replacement parts catalog, Maremont quickly moved into new areas such as shock absorbers, camshafts and other items.

Rebills "Come Of Age"
One of its more recent moves reflects a major trend throughout the ever-changing aftermarket industry. The step involved Maremont's entry into the field of re-manufactured auto parts.

Once regarded as the black sheep of the replacement business, re-manufacturing (commonly called rebuilding) has come of age. According to Maremont's Automotive Group President, John P. Buck, re-manufactured parts today account for something close to 25 per cent of the total aftermarket.

For some specific parts, the share is even greater. According to recent surveys among service outlets: 97 per cent of all starters replaced today are rebuilt starters; 81 per cent of replacement generators are rebuilt; 78 per cent of clutches; 77 per cent of carburetors; 90 per cent of brake components; and 62 per cent of water pumps.

Other frequently-rebuilt parts include fuel pumps, power brake units, solenoids, voltage regulators, armatures, alternators. And, where once these parts were assembled in tiny garages on a hit-or-miss basis, many of today's 1,000 remanufacturers across the country are large, efficient, mass production operations that turn out good-as-new products. To their delivery docks come thousands of used parts that are disassembled, cleaned, reconditioned with new components, quality tested, and shipped out to motorists in nearby states. The increased quality and reliability of rebuilt parts has come at a fortunate time for the service industry, because several critical needs have arisen:

1. The nation is facing a dire shortage of skilled mechanics, forcing the rate of labor charges upward and skyrocketing the cost of on-the-spot repair jobs;
2. Auto parts are becoming more complex, harder to overhaul at the retail level;
3. Motorists are less patient, demand immediate service;
4. The cost of new parts has risen substantially.

Maremont's idea, says Buck, was to acquire some of the harvest of these regional companies and establish the nation's first coast-to-coast network of remanufacturing centers. This was accomplished last year, and now the parts are distributed nationally, backed by the same warranty as new parts. And yet their retail price is often less than two thirds of the new part price.

The payoff of these efforts by independent manufacturers like Maremont is indicated by a complex array of statistics that views potential auto parts replacement the way insurance companies look at the mortality rate index.

Market Projections Unique

In a manner truly unique to the auto aftermarket, parts makers can project, to a close degree, the number of 1960 Chevrolet generators, for example, that will probably be needed for replacement in the state of Wisconsin in the year 1967!

Each part, of course, has a different average lifetime. But in every case, the current and future demand figures are overwhelming. This year, one out of every four cars on the road will need a new set of shock absorbers, providing a retail market of close to half a billion dollars.
